Sioux City, Iowa, April 29—Northwestern and Northern Nebraska and most of South Dakota are in the grip of sleet and snow storms this morning. In South Dakota the snow fall is very heavy and as a result this entire territory is practically cut off from communication by telegraph or telephone. The effect on the crops will be rather to retard than to kill.

REINHARD SCHEIDLER MET WITH APPALLING DEATH THIS AFTERNOON

An Engine Exploded Killing Mr. Scheidler and Injuring Several Other Men.

Huge Machine Tossed Upon Roof of Building by Terrific Force of the Explosion—One Man's Teeth Knocked Out—Brief Sketch of Mr. Scheidler One Of Newark's Foremost Men.

An appalling disaster occurred this afternoon at five minutes before four o'clock, at the Scheidler machine shops in which Reinhard Scheidler, the proprietor was killed outright and a half dozen men were injured.

Mr. Scheidler and four employees were testing a threshing machine engine, which they had repaired and which was shortly to be shipped away. They were standing on a board which they were using as a lever to start the fly wheel when the engine suddenly exploded. Mr. Scheidler was struck in the head with a piece of the engine and the top of his skull was crushed, causing death within a few minutes.

Four others who were standing on the board were injured but not seriously. James Cain was struck in the mouth and his teeth were knocked out. He was not otherwise seriously hurt. August Hess, a nephew of Mr. Scheidler, was thrown to the ground and outside of a bad bruise on the arm was not otherwise injured.

The engine was thrown a distance of forty feet and landed on the roof of the new boiler building, crushing the rear part of the building. The boiler is hanging from the shattered wall.

Dr. C. A. Hatch was summoned and he did all possible to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded.

Cabs were called at once and the persons injured were removed.

Mr. Scheidler's body was laid in the machine shop where a large number of grief stricken and excited people viewed it. The faces of all persons in the machine shop yards were blackened by the flying dirt and cinders and many were thought to have been hurt who were otherwise uninjured. Those who were working at the engine were unable to give a succinct explanation of the boiled explosion.

Reinhard Scheidler was one of the foremost men of Newark. For years he made this city his home and he has been Newark grow from small insignificant town to a thriving city of 22,000 people and in a large measure Mr. Scheidler has been responsible for the growth and prosperity of his home town.

REINHARD SCHEIDLER.

Mr. Scheidler was closely identified with Newark's business interests. He was a practical machinist and for years was in partnership with the late John McNamar in the operation of a machine shop. About 20 years ago, he and Mr. McNamar dissolved partnership and he established the Scheidler machine works, near the B. & O. passenger station.

Mr. Scheidler will be sincerely mourned. His untimely death will be sincerely lamented but his memory will remain always with the hundreds of people in Newark and throughout Ohio who were pleased to call him a friend. He was a man among men a citizen of whom Newark was indeed proud.

SULTAN

Orders Armenian Massacres

To Relieve Pressure In European Turkey

Berlin, April 29—Die Information today reports that the Sultan recently summoned the Kurd chiefs in Asia Minor to Constantinople and instructed them to re-commence the Armenian massacres which caused such a sensation in the civilized world half a dozen years ago. Abdul's idea, the paper asserts, is that bloodshed on a large scale in Armenia would distract attention from Macedonia and relieve the pressure in European Turkey.

Armenian massacres. Die Information continues, have already occurred in the districts of Van, Vaspurakan, Mush and Sassun. In the fight near Van the Armenians fought the Kurds fiercely with the result that 200 were killed and several hundred wounded, many of the casualties being among the Kurds.

Armenian fugitives, according to the paper, crossed the Russian frontier

CZAR

Wants Not Only Manchuria

But Whole of Northern China

Washington, April 29—In response to inquiries made three days ago by Secretary Hay, the state department today received a dispatch from Ambassador McCormick to the effect that the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs has assured him that the published reports of the proposed convention between Russian and China relating to Manchuria are absolutely incorrect and that there is no foundation for the report that Russia demands China shall refuse requests of other powers for treaty ports and consulates in Manchuria.

Princeton, N. J., April 29—Gloria Vanderbilt's departure for China is only part of a reported Russian scheme to annex not only Manchuria, but the whole northern part of the Chinese empire. For the last six months Russia has been quietly shipping enormous quantities of military supplies to Cossack bands along the northern boundary of China, and is now in position to defy any attempt to thwart her plans in that region.

Under the guise of convicts, thousands of men have been rushed over the Siberian railway and it is said that the czar now has two full army corps occupying every point of vantage, to invade China.

Harrisburg Pennypacker Signed the Greater

TSBURG BILL.

Harrisburg, April 29—Governor Pennypacker signed the Greater

At the same time secret agents of Russia have, it is said been stirring up trouble in the Chinese empire, and another uprising of the Boxers may be expected at any time.

This news, which has reached here by letter, because of the impossibility of telegraphing it past the Russian censorship, has not come unexpectedly.

In fact, the German foreign and war departments have been informed of Russia's every move in the East, but there is no intention on the part of the imperial government to interfere, as the breaking up of China is a question of time only, and it is thought the czar will be perfectly willing to come to an understanding with the kaiser, whereby Germany would acquire valuable territory in the south and east of China.

It is known that the kaiser, during his short visit to Copenhagen, expressed his desire to visit Fredensborg castle, the summer residence of King Christian, some time during the latter part of the summer, when the czar will be there, and he then expects to come to some friendly arrangement with Russia.

France, it is believed here, as a matter of course, as the acknowledged ally of Russia, has been kept thoroughly abreast with all developments in the far East, and will act in unison with Russia, invading Chinese territory from the south, thereby adding to her possessions in Tonquin.

The alliance between Great Britain and Japan will not be apt to change the course of events materially, as England has all she can attend to in Somaliland, and will not dare to draw troops away from India.

Japan is more than willing to try her strength with the Russian bear, but without material support from England, she will be powerless against the strong Russian forces, which are already in the field ready for both offense and defense.

Should England try to oppose the plans of Russia, she will, it is said, shortly find herself checkmated and threatened in India, as the czar has an enormous force ready to invade English territory from the north.

As so often before, Russian diplomacy has scored a victory of world-wide importance without the loss of a drop of blood," remarked a well-known diplomat.

The occupation of Manchuria and annexation of as much of the Chinese empire as Russia sees fit to take, is a "fait accompli" and Europe can do nothing wiser than consent with as good grace as possible.

The whole plan is generally credited to Prince Kourapatkin, who besides being an excellent diplomat, is an experienced soldier and thoroughly familiar with every part of Asia. Since in the days of Skobloff, Russia has not had a general as talented as Kourapatkin, who is just as daring and brave as the latter, but is cool where Skobloff was high strung and nervous.

And Then Lashed Them Unmercifully With Hickory Switches--Indiana White Caps Resort to Severe Measures Near Nashville.

Nashville, Ind., April 29—Times white-capping is still in vogue in this country, despite the efforts of Governor Durnin to put a stop to it. It is evidenced by the fact that a double white-capping outrage was perpetrated in Johnson township Sunday night the news of which has just reached here.

All reports agree that a mob of men, with a rail, battered open the door to the homes of James Moffett and Elsworth Hashman.

OPERATOR FOUND TO BE RAVING MANIAC.

ENGINEER OF FLYER STOPPED

Investigate the Danger Signal and He Prevented Catastrophe--Insane Man Save the Train.

St. Louis, Mo., April 29—A telegraph operator's insane act in Peag Station, Ill., before becoming a raving maniac was to turn on the red danger light, thus saving the Chicago express on the Wabash from possible destruction.

Whirling through space on a down grade at the rate of 60 miles an hour, Engineer Dongan of the express train, gave a cry of astonishment as the great throbbing engine swept around a curve into view of the station of Peag. The red eye of a semaphore flashing its message of danger to all eastbound trains, caused him to reach for the reverse lever with one hand while with the other he sought the small handle that controls the air brakes.

No. 18, the fast Chicago express, is a privileged train, and all others seek side tracks when it encroaches upon their right of way.

Believing that the rumble of the train would notify the operator at Peag that the Chicago express was coming Dongan refrained for 30 seconds from checking the speed of the flyer. But when the sharp blast from his whistle brought no response and still the red beacon did not change to white Dongan acted.

With a shriek the powerful locomotive yielded to the unrelenting clutch of its superior air brakes and drew up panting before the little station.

The conductor and brakeman hurried to the engine in alarm. Dongan swung himself down from his cab and the three men hurried into the telegraph station amazed and nonpulsed to understand why they were compelled to stop.

As they opened the door and caught sight of the figure sitting at the telegraph key they sprang back with exclamations of horror. Glimmering to himself, unmindful of the tattooing of the shoulders and relays calling frantically "G." "G." "G." the signal of the Peag office. D. S. Ranshaw, of Litchfield, the operator upon whom depend-perate resistance, Moffett's arms were pinioned and he was soon bound to a tree. After whipping him the mob took him back to his home, where the leader of the gang lectured him in the presence of his wife.

The leader alleged that Moffett had been visiting a disreputable house, and that when his wife took him to task he beat her. He was told that if he repeated his visits to the house or mistreated his wife again the white-caps would return.

Hashman lives across the way from Moffett, and he was next visited by the mob. He was dragged and told to keep away from illegal houses or suffer additional punishment.

Warrants will be issued if the identity of the marauders can be established. The victims say that they did not recognize any of them.

GRANVILLE

COLLEGE SENIORS HAD A GOOD TIME TUESDAY NIGHT.

Disastrous Runaway—Decoration Day Arrangements—Baseball Games Saturday—Personals.

Granville, Ohio, April 29—About 6 o'clock Tuesday evening the residents of the village were suddenly made aware that "somethin'" was doing in town by the college yell and the tramp of many feet, as a host of students marched through the streets to make more widely known the last Senior "circus." Gaily painted banners and signs were waved aloft, and the parade of the usually dignified Seniors was headed by a band—a real band composed of trumpets and horns and thundering voices. In the wake of the Seniors followed a large number of students who lustily cheered them on. An amusing feature of the parade was the "take off" on Professor Williams by J. H. West who appeared in ludicrous costume, along with the students. The marchers made an extensive tour of the town, making its way up the stony paths of "Sugar Loaf" and down the broad streets. The last Senior exhibition was held in Recital hall at 8 o'clock, when the following program was carried out:

Essay, "Men Rich but Self Made," Miss Dora Moore.

Essay, "The Use and Abuse of Slang," Miss Corinne Anne Metz.

Oration, "Parasitism," Frank Bedford Amos.

Essay, "The Dog in Literature," Miss Jessie Amanda King.

Music, Madrigal, Simonette; Mazurka, Statkowski, Mr. F. B. Amos.

Oration, "The Relics of Barbarism," Mr. Donald Husted Powers.

Oration, "The Essence of Heroism," Mr. Hugh Robert Hich.

Essay, "The Greater Lights in Literature," Miss Mary Celia Fulton.

Music, Serenade, Pierre, Mr. Judson.

One of the most disastrous runaways that has been seen in Granville for some time occurred on Monday morning. Mr. Wm. Philbrick the dairyman, who resides on Burg street, had come to town with his daily supply of milk, and having some business to transact left his horse standing in front of the Candy Kitchen. The animal frightened at something and ran away. He ran across the street and collided with the watering trough in front of the postoffice and continuing on his way crashed into the railing in front of the Baptist church, badly wrecking the wagon, and scattering the milk cans and bottles in the street.

At a meeting of the old soldiers of the village held for the purpose of making arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration day, the matter of securing a speaker for the occasion was left to a committee consisting of Messrs. J. C. Malone and C. B. Evans, and to make such other arrangements as they may deem necessary. The committee will report at another meeting to be held one week from next Saturday night.

A fine game of ball is scheduled to take place on Beaver field Saturday afternoon between the Mutes of Columbus and Denison's second team. The teams are pretty evenly matched and as this is the only game that will be played on Beaver field until May 12 everybody should turn out and see what the second team can do in the way of playing ball.

Miss Edna Thornton was the guest of Miss Edna Stranathan of Shepardson college at tea on Tuesday evening. Thomas Hartup of Corning, was in the village a short time Tuesday on business.

Miss Fannie Henry of Middletown, is visiting friends here for a few days. Denison will play Muskingum at New Concord Saturday.

Mrs. Guy Johnson and sons, who have been visiting relatives in Fredericktown for some days, have returned home.

Hoy Johnson has been visiting for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson at their home in Fredericktown.

The little five year old son of Mr. Charles Hobart, who lives two miles north of this place, met with a very serious accident on Tuesday. Mr.

The trainmen realized for the first time the gravity of the situation. Neither of them was an operator, and the uninterrupted clicking of the instrument was meaningless to them. They were powerless to go forward or backward. They did not know what danger confronted them.

Not for half an hour were the train officials able to find the day operator and get their clearance orders. Fortunately they discovered that Ranshaw had not committed any serious blunders.

When Ranshaw reported for duty the night before he was in his usual health. He had been partially paralyzed some time before, and had been removed from a more important station to Poag, where the work is lighter and where he might have a chance to recuperate.

It is believed from subsequent developments that Ranshaw began to lose his mind early in his night's work. Growing more and more oblivious to his work, yet receiving and relaying train orders mechanically, he finally, with his last conscious act, probably realizing the danger that confronted him, turned on the red light to warn the onrushing flyer.

It was his long training as a railroad man which probably caused him to take the only course to save the great express. Had the flyer gone on through, a smash-up somewhere on the line must certainly have occurred, because Ranshaw was in no condition to take or send the necessary orders to keep the trains moving systematically and safely.

ed the safety of all the trains on that division, at at his instrument a raving maniac.

The trainmen realized for the first time the gravity of the situation. Neither of them was an operator, and the uninterrupted clicking of the instrument was meaningless to them. They were powerless to go forward or backward. They did not know what danger confronted them.

Not for half an hour were the train officials able to find the day operator and get their clearance orders. Fortunately they discovered that Ranshaw had not committed any serious blunders.

When Ranshaw reported for duty the night before he was in his usual health. He had been partially paralyzed some time before, and had been removed from a more important station to Poag, where the work is lighter and where he might have a chance to recuperate.

It is believed from subsequent developments that Ranshaw began to lose his mind early in his night's work. Growing more and more oblivious to his work, yet receiving and relaying train orders mechanically, he finally, with his last conscious act, probably realizing the danger that confronted him, turned on the red light to warn the onrushing flyer.

It was his long training as a railroad man which probably caused him to take the only course to save the great express. Had the flyer gone on through, a smash-up somewhere on the line must certainly have occurred, because Ranshaw was in no condition to take or send the necessary orders to keep the trains moving systematically and safely.

WHICH WON?

Several young men were sitting around a table in the cafe of a club in New York. Some one introduced the subject of matrimony in order to start Cutler Hartsough gabbling, for being a woman hater, and possessing a vein of dry humor, he invariably waxed entertaining on marriage. He was especially caustic on this occasion and kept the party in a roar of laughter.

The next topic was as to the time required to make a journey around the globe. This occasioned an animated discussion which led to a bet between Hartsough and Foster Conant of a box at the opera for the coming season that Hartsough would make the trip in sixty-eight days.

Hartsough left the next day at noon and, meeting with no delays, arrived at San Francisco with time to spare to reach New York before the close of the sixty-eighth day, which ended at 12 o'clock noon. So he concluded to have a good night's sleep at a hotel. After dinner he was sitting in the reading room, smoking a cigar, when a man approached him and asked if he was Mr. Hartsough. He replied that he was, whereupon he was informed that his exploit was the talk of the clubs of New York, and a New York paper had directed the man to interview him. Hartsough, much pleased, gave the desired interview, with information as to when he would reach different points on his journey eastward. Then the man departed, and Hartsough went to bed.

When the traveler reached Chicago, he had two days in which to make the distance to New York. He left Chicago on a Thursday morning and was not due at his club till Saturday noon. The time between Chicago and New York is twenty hours. In the parlor car sat a young lady dressed in a fashionable traveling costume. She sent the porter to him to ask if he was Mr. Hartsough of New York. Upon his reply that he was she sent him her card.

"Miss Ethelwyn Wheatwill," Hartsough joined her, raised his hat deferentially and waited for an explanation. "The girl's face broke into a delicious flush as she said: 'My aunt, Mrs. Clinton, telegraphed me that you would be on this train. Knowing that I dread traveling alone, she suggested that you might consent to take me under your charge.'"

"Mrs. Alexander Clinton of — Madison avenue?"

"Yes."

"I know her very well. She has placed me under an obligation in giving me so charming a traveling companion. But how did she know I was to be on this train?"

"Why, your trip is the talk of all our set. Besides, I was told there was something about it in the newspapers."

Then Hartsough remembered the man who had interviewed him. Miss Wheatwill knew of his bet and Hartsough gallantly told her that in case he won it he would beg the honor of her acceptance of the box for the season. This offer occasioned a sudden cessation of that liveliness with which she was attracting him. However, this passed off, and the twenty hours of the journey seemed to Hartsough but so many minutes. Mrs. Alexander Clinton met them at the Grand Central station with her carriage and insisted on Hartsough driving home with them to dinner, an invitation he was only too glad to accept. After dinner he was left with Miss Wheatwill, and at 11 o'clock he requested the butler to call a carriage. Mrs. Clinton insisted on his remaining in the house for the night. This he declined at first, but as the lady seemed to have set her heart upon it he finally consented, pleased to remember that he would meet Miss Wheatwill at breakfast.

He had no sooner entered his room than he heard the sound of a key turned from the outside. Trying the door, he found it locked.

"Tricked!" he cried, starting.

Meanwhile a party of men at the club, who had had an intimation from one of their number that something was in the wind, had met eager for news. As the clock struck 12 Tom Bond entered and reported that Hartsough was under lock and key. A couple of baskets of champagne celebrated the event.

It was 10 o'clock the next morning when Hartsough heard a tap at his prison door.

"It's I, Mr. Hartsough."

"Yes, I am very much ashamed of the part I have taken, though it was all your fault. My cousin, Tom Bond, heard your strictures on woman and your bet. I bet him the price of a theater party that I would delay you."

"H'm! There's time for repentance. It's only 10 o'clock. I'm due at the club at 12."

"I'll lose my bet."

"I'll take care of that and keep my promise about the opera box."

"Tom will never forgive me."

"I will."

"That's very nice of you."

The door was unlocked and the prisoner spent an hour in the drawing room

Mrs. Tupman, a prominent lady of Richmond, Va., a great sufferer with woman's troubles, tells how she was cured.

"For some years I suffered with backache, severe bearing-down pains, leucorrhoea, and falling of the womb. I tried many remedies, but nothing gave any positive relief. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in June, 1901. When I had taken the first half bottle, I felt a vast improvement, and have now taken ten bottles with the result that I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking the Vegetable Compound I felt all worn out and was fast approaching complete nervous collapse. I weighed only 98 pounds. Now I weigh 109 1/2 pounds and am improving every day. I gladly testify to the benefits received."—Mrs. R. C. TUPMAN, 433 West 30th St., Richmond, Va. —$5000 for full original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me?" Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick. Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women. Perhaps she has just the knowledge that will help your case—try her to-day—it costs nothing.

THE SICK.

William M. Abbott, an employee of the Everett glass works, is quite sick at his home on Sycamore street.

Henry Denman, who has been confined to his home in the North End for the past two weeks with an attack of typhoid fever, is rapidly recovering and was able to come down street today.

The St. Petersburg Messenger of Trade and Industry boasts that the characteristic feature of last year was the almost total suspension of the import of chemical products and the very perceptible increase in their price, due to the growth of competition and improvements in Russian manufacture.

The great American trouble is indigestion, largely the result of the great American habit hurry.

Hastily swallowed meals are probably the greatest cause of indigestion. The stomach is given more than its share of work, and is weakened. The first thing to do in correcting the trouble is to stop fast eating. The next thing is to take a good digestive tonic to strengthen the digestion and enrich the impoverished blood.

Such a tonic is Walther's Peptonized Port a simple combination of pure port wine and good port wine, to be had at Frank D. Hall's drug store.

JUDGE SEWARD'S SON

Thrown From Pony, Receiving Fractured Skull— Accident on North Fourth Street—Boy's Condition is Critical.

Clarence Seward, the 13 year old son of Judge and Mrs. Charles W. Seward, was badly injured Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock on North Fourth street in front of Kates & Wright's upholstery shop.

The little fellow was riding a pony from school to his home north of Newark, and the animal shied at some tiles piled along the sidewalk and backed directly in front of the street car, which was coming down Fourth street. The lad was thrown to the pavement and sustained serious injuries. He was taken in an unconscious condition to the office of Dr. J. A. Mitchell, who is an uncle of the boy, and Drs. D. M. Smith, J. G. Bower, W. H. Knauss and J. A. Mitchell examined him and found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull.

He remained in a semi-unconscious condition all night, and Wednesday morning, although his symptoms were more favorable, it is doubtful if he will recover.

BY A FALL

Frank M. Smith's Son Was Rendered Unconscious Tuesday Evening. Not Seriously Hurt.

William, the little twelve year old son of Mr. Frank M. Smith, while riding his bicycle on Hudson avenue Tuesday evening, struck a stone and was thrown to the pavement, temporarily rendering him unconscious. He was found to be seriously injured about the head, while his hip, back, and hands were badly bruised. The accident created considerable excitement on account of several horses taking fright at an automobile that was passing, and for a short time there was a general mixup of things on the street. Dr. D. M. Smith came along in his auto and stopped and examined the boy. He then loaded the boy and wheel on his auto and took him to his home on Hudson avenue, where a more careful examination was made and William's injuries, though painful, were pronounced not serious.

GENERAL MILES ON THE PHILIPPINES.

It is right that the truth should come out concerning the methods of repression and warfare adopted in the Philippines by the American troops, even if the disclosures should dishonor and disgrace those who are in any way responsible for the war and its conduct. Publicity as to the horrors of the conflict is the best way to put an end to them. Part of General Miles' report is published at last, and it strengthens and confirms former loose statements as to the inhumanity and cruelty of the Americans in the conduct of the war. There has been nothing more odious or disgraceful in our history, whether of wars with whites or savages. The essence of it is downright and unnecessary cruelty in the accomplishment of objects at war with the laws of nations supposed to govern a civilized people.

General Miles' details, so far as he could gather the facts, the murder of prisoners of war by command of American officers. The torture of prisoners to extract information of various kinds is made manifest, and established by evidence that satisfied the general. People in Philippine towns were subjected to great indignities and tortured by the "water cure." In carrying out the Weyer concentration plan used in Cuba by the Spaniards, General Miles presents revolting instances, where, in one case, 600 Filipinos were jammed in one room, some of whom, on the testimony of a physician, died of suffocation. Prisoners were sent to the woods under guard with instructions that they should not be brought back again. They were killed. Evidence promised him in his investigations was suppressed, whether by persuasion or coercion General Miles is not prepared to say at the present time.

It is the general-in-chief of the American army who makes these humiliating and dishonoring statements. He does it an effort to stop further cruelties and barbarities, disgraceful to the American name and a reproach to the American army. He merits high honor for the noble work he has done. It required courage to do it, for the army and administration sentiment in the Philippines, and to agree to extend at Washington, has been in the direction of toning down, explaining and even justifying the horrors of our needless and cruel war on a weak and trusting people. We have little doubt General Miles gives the American people an insight into the way the war in the Philippines has been conducted from the start, to the everlasting disgrace and dishonor of the American name.

And now there are intimations that if Russia insist on restraining Manchuria it will not be possible to dislodge her. What difference? We might as well be worrying about dislodging Great Britain in East Africa. European nations are going on with their schemes of conquest and expansion, and our sensible course is to remain friendly with all of them, but keep them out of this continent.

WAR HEROES HONORED.

Recent Transformation of Chickamauga Battle Field Described by Wm. E. Curtis--Similar Work Being Done at Shiloh.

Under the authority of congress the federal government has purchased 7,000 acres of land covering the battle field of Chickamauga and has restored it as nearly as possible to the condition in which it was at the opening of the fight on Sept. 19 and 20, 1863, between the Union forces under General Rosecrans and the Confederates under General Bragg, says William E. Curtis, the Chicago Record-Herald's correspondent, writing from Chattanooga, Tenn. The government has also purchased a strip of land running the entire length of Missionary ridge, including the site of the intrenchments which were captured by the Union troops on the 25th of November following. Eighty miles of roads have been constructed from Chattanooga through these parks and other battle fields in the neighborhood of the city, and the landscape has been beautified as much as could be done without effacing landmarks that existed before the battles and altering the topography. The movements of both armies have been traced with great skill and fidelity throughout the entire series of engagements, and the locations of important struggles and other episodes have been marked by monuments and non tablets containing historical notes and statistics. More than $1,750,000 has thus been expended for the purpose of preserving the scene of one of the most desperate and heroic conflicts in human history and perpetuating the evidences of bravery and devotion in both armies.

In a similar manner the government is now laying out the battle fields of Shiloh and Vicksburg, and interesting dedicatory ceremonies were held at the former a few days ago. The old roads of the battle field have been reopened, the underbrush has been cleared from 3,000 acres upon which the fighting took place, five steel observation towers, each seventy feet high, have been erected in order that visitors may get a birdseye view of the field; 643 historical tablets of iron containing explanatory inscriptions have been erected to mark the movements of corps, divisions, brigades and regiments of both the armies, and 368 plaques and locality tablets have been placed as guides for those who desire to follow them as they moved forward and back in their assaults and retreats. The old lines of earthworks and fortifications have been restored exactly as they were at the close of the battle. The position of each battery of artillery that participated has been marked with guns of the same pattern and caliber of those actually used. Forty-three Union batteries are represented by 107 guns and 40 Confederate batteries by 96 guns. Some of the guns were actually engaged in the battle. Nine monuments in the form of pyramids of shells mark where five Union and four Confederate brigade commanders fell, and similar pyramids mark the positions occupied by the fourteen army and corps commanders. The location of these spots has been a work of great interest as well as painstaking labor, and there have been some curious experiences. For example, some years ago Colonel Bishop of the Second Minnesota, with one of his sergeants, came down to assist General Burnton in determining the position occupied by that regiment, which had an important part in the engagement. They knew that it was intrenched at the top of a hill and that it repelled several assaults by the enemy. The Confederates charged again and again to drive the Second Minnesota from this commanding position and capture a battery which was doing terrible execution under its support. Colonel Bishop picked out the hill without difficulty, but new trees had sprung up, the surface was covered with underbrush, and the exact position of the regiment was difficult to determine. Finally the sergeant said:

"I remember that I lay on my belly in the grass at the end of a little ravine, and I think this is the ravine. Our ammunition was almost exhausted, and we crept around to gather up whatever we could find on the bodies of the dead and wounded that lay around us. I got my pockets full and crawled back to my place. I put the cartridges on the grass on one side of me and the caps on the other and fired away until the enemy withdrew. I remember leaving the unused cartridges and caps upon the ground." And as he said the word he began to stir up the leaves that covered the soil. In a few moments he found a handful of old fashioned cartridges and caps which he had left on the ground that day. A beautiful group of bronze by Lorado Taft of Chicago, representing the color bearer of the Second Minnesota wounded and defended by some of his comrades, marks the place today.

Up to date seventeen states whose citizens participated in the battle have erected monuments costing from $750 to $20,000. The United States government has spent $1,225,000, and the total contributions of the states now reach $531,000.

In addition to these, two private memorials have been erected in honor of Landrum's and Carnes' batteries, and the federal government has erected thirty-two in honor of the regular troops that were engaged.

Marriage in Turkey.
The dowry of a Turkish bride is fixed by custom at about $1.70, which amount, for polite reasons, is seldom departed from, even by the rich. The wedding day is invariably Thursday, and the customary wedding festivities begin on Monday and last four days. They are carried on by men and women separately, and each day is distinguished by a different ceremony. No spoons or forks or wines are used at the wedding feast.

She Weds a Poor Soldier.
The Earl of Rosebery's eldest daughter, Lady Sibyl Primrose, was married at Epsom recently to Lieutenant C. J. C. Grant of the Coldstream guards. stored in London society circles by the announcement early in the year of the engagement between Lady Sibyl and Lieutenant Grant. While Charles Grant is a young officer who has already made a good military record and is the son of Lieutenant General Sir Robert Grant, he is comparatively poor. Hence the surprise when the engagement was made public. However, there will be no lack of funds in Lieutenant Grant's household, as his bride is a very rich woman in her own right.

Read as a Talker.
William Allen White of Emporia, Kan., took luncheon with Thomas B. Reed at the Century club, New York, the day President McKinley died. "After a simple meal had been put away," Mr. White relates, "Reed pushed back his chair and began to talk. For three long hours he discoursed most beautifully upon life, its uncertainty, its real rewards and its checks and balances, upon fame and its accidents and its emptiness, upon death and immortality and God and all his ways and works. It was a kind of funeral oration the like of which few men are privileged to hear. At the end of it all the big man threw back his head and looked up at the great oak rafters of the room for a long while and then let his hands fall heavily on the short arms of the chair as he sighed: 'Hi-ho! What does it all mean? Where is it going? Who are we? What is this unfathomable mystery we call life? God knows! I don't.'"—Kansas City Star.

Many people think a cracker an insignificant and easy thing to make—yet no one ever succeeded in reaching perfection until Uneeda Biscuit were introduced. Uneeda Biscuit furnishes every element necessary to bodily vigor; and, above all, they are fresh and clean. Robins.
American robins build plaster and dry grass nests in the crotches of trees, while the little English bird of the same name, only about half as big as its cousin in America, makes a soft moss nest on the ground. Its breast is a yellow, red or scarlet, much brighter than the American bird, and it sings even more sweetly, but it is of small value as an insect destroyer. The American robin, on the other hand, has a much duller, quieter coat, a more extended vocabulary, sounding many distinct notes of warning, fear, joy, etc., but not in so sweet a song, and is an inveterate worm and insect hunter. With only occasional lapses into vegetarianism, at strawberry and cherry ripening time, the American robin is really one of the most industrious allies the farmer can have.

"Silk" That Is Really Tin.
Of course British critics say that the practice of adulterating silk with tin originated in Germany. At any rate, it is common enough now. All silk is mixed with more or less foreign matter to give it weight and stability. Vegetable substances were formerly used for the purpose. In dyeing silk the necessary boiling reduces its weight about one-fourth, taking out the natural gummy substances. The weight is sometimes restored with tannic acid. Tin is more common—most of all in cheap black silks. Very soft "wash" silks are apt to be pure. Burn a scrap, and nothing remains but ash. A tin weighted scrap when carefully burned leaves a residuum like excessively fine wire gauze. —New York World.

"I am pleased to give my experience with Wine of Cardui as I am very grateful for its help. After my first baby was born I could not seem to regain my strength, although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband came home one evening with some Wine of Cardui and insisted that I take it for a week and see what it would do for me. As he seemed to have so much faith in it I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

MOTHERHOOD is the noblest duty and highest privilege women can achieve or aspire to. Without this privilege women do not get all there is in life—too often they grow through the world discontented, wrapped up in their own selfish cares and troubles. How different is the happy mother, watching her children grow into manhood and womanhood. A mother lives as many lives as she has children—their joys and sorrows are hers, as are their ambitions, triumphs and defeats. Healthy women do not suffer miscarriage nor does a woman who is healthy suffer tortures at childbirth. It is the woman who is ailing—who has become weak—who fears the ordeal of becoming a mother. Wine of Cardui builds up the woman in a woman. It stops all unnatural drains and strains—irregularities which are responsible for barrenness and miscarriage. It makes a woman strong and healthy and able to pass through pregnancy and childbirth with little suffering. After the ordeal is passed the Wine prepares a woman for a speedy recovery to health and activity.

Wine of Cardui, in re-inforcing the organs of generation, has made mothers of women who had given up hope of ever becoming mothers. Wine of Cardui will cure almost any case of barrenness except cases of organic trouble. How can you refuse to take such a remedy that promises such relief from suffering? Wine of Cardui simply makes you a strong woman, and strong, healthy women do not suffer. They look forward to motherhood with joy.

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

SPECIAL MEETING

Of the City Council This Evening to Consider Electric Light Situation—Superintendent Refused to Permit Council to Make Tests.

Thirteen members of the City Council, and Edward De Crow, formerly of Newark, now an electrical expert with the Western Electric company of Chicago, met with an unexpected reception Tuesday night when they went to the municipal electric light plant to test the dynamo that was placed there nearly two years ago by the Western Electric company.

Superintendent R. Brown refused absolutely to allow Mr. De Crow or any member of the council to touch the machine, or make any test whatever, and thereby hangs a tale.

The present city council has arranged to purchase a new 125 light dynamo, and the machine has been ordered, one of the old 50 light machines to be taken in part payment by the Western Electric Company.

The General Electric company also had a bid in to furnish the new machine, and Superintendent Brown was in favor of this purchase, but the council, thought, otherwise, and the Western's bid was accepted as the lowest and best.

The proposed new machine is an exact duplicate of the one now in use, about which the superintendent complains. He has said the machine, instead of carrying 125 lights, can carry no more than 80, and that the proposed new one is exactly the same in point of construction and capacity, and is not up to date.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

Expert De Crow was sent to Newark by this company to make a test of the dynamo at the plant, before the councilmen, and he went there Tuesday night for that purpose.

Superintendent Brown refused to allow him to make any tests, although he offered to give a $15,000 guarantee that if he broke or burned anything, he would pay for the same.

He offered to show by tests that with proper handling the dynamo would do all that was claimed for it and more. He offered to put on 150 lights, 25 more than it was warranted to carry, but to all his propositions the superintendent was deaf, and the councilmen went away disappointed, and Mr. De Crow thoroughly disgusted.

The actions of Superintendent Brown are inexplicable, and a special meeting of the council has been called for Wednesday night to take further action on the matter.

One member said this morning that if the present council was not so near the end of its existence, Brown would be discharged immediately from his position, but under the circumstances he did not know what action would be taken.

Mr. Brown has asked Solicitor Smythe to sue an injunction against the council to restrain them from purchasing the proposed machine.

Birthday Observed.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the past week was the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mr. John Taylor at his home on Western avenue on Sunday. Mr. Taylor was 78 years old and the children of his deceased brother, Mr. Jas. Taylor, planned to assist the old gentleman in properly celebrating the event. Besides the immediate family of Mr. Taylor there were present: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clunis of Hebron, Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence of Kirkersville, Samuel Taylor, son and daughter of Hebron, George Taylor, wife and two daughters of Millersport, Thomas Ruge, wife and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lawyer, Mr. and Mrs. James Clunis and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Leis of Newark. The principal feature of the occasion was the sumptuous dinner that was served.

A short time ago a Sicilian advocate was found guilty of 63 different acts of fraud. For his industry and enthusiasm in the cause of dishonesty he was sentenced to 189 years of imprisonment.

The first Union flag was unfurled on January 1, 1776, over the camp at Cambridge.

Those who have been deprived of testing its remarkable reconstructive qualities because they imagined it the greasy, fishy kind, could never be more mistaken.

Hagee's Cordial is a thin palatable fluid, with a pleasant odor and agreeable taste. Children take it readily and it agrees with the most delicate stomach. For thin, emaciated, weak conditions of adults, children or infants, its bracing, tonic effect is marvelous.

THE RAILWAYS

FRANK SHRIVERS KILLED BY A B. & O. TRAIN.

Crews Assigned for B. & O. Engines

Relief Checks—Day's Local and General Railway Pickups

The body of a man killed by a B. & O. train was found yesterday on the track near Frazier's crossing west of Cambridge. The body was identified as that of Frank Shivers, a sewing machine repairer of Cambridge. He was 39 years old and leaves two children. How he was killed is not known.

Annual Ball.

The Railroad Callers of Newark gave their annual dance at Brennan's Hall on Tuesday night, and it proved a most delightful and perfect success in every respect. There was a large attendance, and every one present reported a grand good time. The music for the occasion was furnished by Marsh's orchestra. Too much credit cannot be given to the committee having the dance in charge, Messrs. Joseph Dublin, Jack Woolees and George Floyd, for the perfect success of the affair.

Mr. Patterson's Horse.

"Bud" Patterson, extra engineer in the B. & O. yards, is receiving good naturedly considerable chaffing from the boys about his experience as a dealer in horse flesh. Bud purchased a fine horse several days ago, and on Monday hitched it up and drove along the canal. The animal shied at something and backed the buggy into the canal much to Bud's discomfort. The popular engineer took no more chances but traded his recent purchase for a horse that may not look so well but is perfectly safe for anyone to drive.

Conductor Dowd.

Charles Dowd, of Chicago Junction a B. & O. conductor, who was injured in a wreck some time ago, is in the city today. The physicians thought that it would be necessary to amputate his leg, but Dowd objected and at present is thankful that he did so, as he has improved wonderfully in the past few weeks and expects to be able to return to the road again in the course of four or five months.—Hansfield News.

Crews Assigned.

Crews for new B. & O. engines have been assigned as follows:

Engine 2207, W. J. Blinn, engineer; H. M. Evans, fireman.

Engine 2208, George B. Stratton, engineer; V. Dush, fireman.

Engine 2209, William Floyd, engineer; A. H. Stahl, fireman.

Engine 2210, John Floyd, engineer; W. H. Staggs, fireman.

Engine 2211, A. Doyle, engineer; C. B. Hardesty, fireman.

Engine 1736, S. S. Walker, engineer; G. W. Funniger.

Engine 1731, William Sherrard, engineer; R. H. Tharp, fireman.

Relief Checks.

Relief checks for the following named employees of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad are in the hands of Medical Examiner Dr. S. C. Priest: Oscar J. D. Faatz, Jesse A. Hillis, John F. Lahley, Emory Lepjick, David J. Peepers, Paul Patrick, James W. Richardson, Thomas W. Stoker, Istvan Talli.

DR. A. W. CHASE NERVE PILLS

Cure by Rebuilding, Reinvigorating and Revitalizing The Nervous System and Furnishing to the Different Organs of the Body the Power to do Their Work Properly And to The Fullest Extent.

If the person subject to attack of dizziness, or swimming of the head, commonly called vertigo, would only stop to realize that these symptoms are not a disease in themselves, not temporary ailments, but the plainest sort of warnings from nature of grave troubles of deeper origin or an exhausted nervous system or of an oncoming apoplexy, epilepsy or paralysis, the matter would receive prompt attention. Dr. A. W. Chase knew this and provided the cure in his celebrated Nerve Pills, a medicine that brings back the glow of health and strength by its power to furnish just what the ill-fed, half-starved nervous system needs, good, rich wholesome blood and nerve force of energy.

Sex of Gems.

The Romans, following the Greek mineralogists, divided gems into males and females according to the depth or lightness of their color. These terms are thus alluded to by Theophrastus: "Both these (beryl, carbuncle, onyx, crystal and amethyst) and the sard are found on breaking open certain rocks, presenting certain differences, but agreeing in name with each other. For of the sard the transparent and blood red sort is called the female, while the less transparent and darker kind is termed the male, and the cyanus also is named one sort the male and the other the female, but the male is the deeper in color of the two." The cyanus, or cyanos, of the ancients is said, though probably incorrectly, by many modern mineralogists to be identical with our sapphire.

The Letter "M" in Mother.

It has been pointed out as a curious fact that the letter "M" in almost all known languages—English, French, Latin, Spanish, Greek, Hebrew, Chinese and the others—is to be found in the word which stands for mother or nurse. Perhaps this is owing to its representing a sound which exists in every spoken speech and has the same pronunciation in them all. It is also exceedingly easy to utter and is one of the first sounds that children make, and it therefore naturally enters into the appellation given to the nursing parent in the first cries of recognition and affection. There is no doubt at all that "ma" and the other baby names for mother originated directly from the child.

Mrs. William Spencer of No. 105 Granger street, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I was always nervous, but of late years I could not sleep, was intensely nervous, ringing sounds in the ears and sharp noises in my head at night. My strength was waning—had attacks of vertigo when I was so dizzy I had to catch hold of something until it passed off. This condition certainly needed attention as it was growing steadily worse. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills was called to my attention and I got a box. The results were splendid, the nerves became quiet—the ringing in the head disappeared with the dizzy spells disappeared completely and I began to sleep well again. The general strength came back and as a result I feel well every way again."

THE DEVIL'S PACKET

[Original.]

The pirates that infested the gulf of Mexico during the early years of the Spanish occupation of Central America disappeared gradually, reappeared occasionally and vanished, the last ship showing up in the early part of the nineteenth century. One moonlight night she sailed out of Puerto Cabello, in Honduras, where she had been lying at anchor during a storm, and made for open waters.

"What is that black link out there?" said the man at the wheel to the captain, "and how does she find anchorage in such deep water?"

"She's not anchored," said the captain. "She's lying to."

"No, she's moving. Her yards are squared toward us, but she has altered her course, and I can see her sails. How can those few patches of canvas move so large a vessel, I wonder?"

"All the better for us," replied the captain. "A hulk of a merchantman with such rags will be easily overhauled. Put her north by half north-east."

Whether the merchantman espied the pirate and proposed to get away from her or no, she turned and moved in the same direction as the latter. Notwithstanding her meager show of canvas, she did not seem to lose much interval.

"How does she keep that pace?" inquired the captain of one of his principal men who came up to ask about the stranger.

"She's a queer one," replied the other musically.

The captain called the crew on deck and ordered them to prepare for action. The guns were run out, ammunition was brought up, and a reserve supply of cutlasses was dumped at the foot of the mainmast. Then the grappling irons were fixed in place, and the crew stood ready. So long as they were busy they kept their heads, but the moment they began to watch the strange vessel moving steadily on under sail, incapable of giving their own little vessel a headway of half a dozen knots they began to look puzzled.

Presently it began to be apparent to the pirates that they were gaining on the vessel. Notwithstanding that she was under the same sail as before, she was scarcely moving. Then of a sudden her sails were furled, but, wonderful to relate, she resumed her former speed. The captain, the wheelman and half a dozen of the crew who had come up to ask questions about the singular craft all looked at one another in astonishment.

"That's no real ship!" exclaimed one with blanched cheeks. "She is a phantom!"

"Shut up!" cried the captain. "She's a ship, a real ship, and we'll be aboard of her within an hour. The first man who talks about a phantom will feel the edge of my cutlass!"

This quieted the crew temporarily, though several who had been born within the fold of the church secretly crossed themselves. They were of the lowest classes, and their captain was no more enlightened than themselves, though made of sterner stuff. The breeze freshened, and it was apparent to the pirates that with the difference of sail area they must soon catch the stranger unless, indeed, she were a veritable phantom. Nevertheless at 2 o'clock in the morning, when the moon had passed the horizon, the pirate was as far astern as ever. The mysterious vessel moved on like a jack of lantern, and the pirates began to believe that she was under the protection of a dark mist that hung over her. Several times this mist disappeared, and the pursuers always noticed that at such times the stranger's pace was either abated or she ceased to move entirely. After one of these changes of gait the pirates found themselves sailing half a mile behind her and on parallel lines a quarter of a mile apart.

"Send a shot," said the captain.

The gunners got a gun ready on the forecastle, but there seemed to be some delay. The captain went forward and found the men shivering beside the gun.

"What's the matter?" he thundered. "May be she's under the protection of the blessed saints," whimpered one of the men. "It would be impious to fire. Look, there's something white in the water amidstships! She moves again. Santa Maria! The sea monsters are bearing her forward!"

Every man fell on his knees and made the sign of the cross.

Suddenly the vessel, notwithstanding the direction of the wind, sheered around and stood on a course that would take her directly across the pirate's bow. The captain still kept on his feet in the midst of his kneeling men and watched her with open mouth and staring eyes. On went his vessel and on went the stranger, passing his course an eighth of a mile ahead. Presently his fighting nature overcame his superstition, and, seizing an iron that was heating in a brazier, he applied it to the vent of the gun. The sailors covered their eyes with their hands as the gun boomed. When they looked again, the vessel had passed their course, and at the moment there was a flash, and the light of Tophet flared through a square opening in her side, glaring on the figure of Satan, who was thrusting a huge poker into the place from whence the light was emitted. Not only the crew, but the captain, fell on their faces on the deck, not daring to look up. When they did, the devil's packet, as they called the vessel, was skipping away from them, pouring a black cloud from a huge chimney amidstships.

The pirates stood for land, deserted their vessel and forever abandoned their nefarious calling.

The devil's packet was the first steamer ever seen in the gulf of Mexico.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Newark vs. Zanesville.

From the way the Newark and Zanesville newspapers are anticipating results and from their saucy talk back and forth it may be expected that when the Newark team engages Drumm's Pets there will be a rattling game, that is, provided always the Newark team can play ball. The game will be played in Zanesville on Decoration Day.—Zanesville Times-Recorder.

The Newark team will demonstrate to the satisfaction of everyone except the supporters of the Zanesville team, that it can play the game.

Cy Young a Model Ball Player.

There is a good deal of "tommy rot" about this player or that one being a "warm weather pitcher," a "July performer," and other equally preposterous claims as a result of poor work on the part of certain slab artists. A game in April counts just as much as a game in July, in the championship table, and there is no reason why the weather should have a different effect on different pitchers' arms. You never hear such peevish excuses made for the really great pitchers of the profession, but usually about some erratic performer, who has been "four flush" on the strength of some few particularly lucky or effective games. Look at Cy Young, Rube Waddell, Joe McGinnity, Christy Mathewson, Jack Chesbro, Frank Hahn and several others. The go out at flag fall and pitch their best and are consistent in their winning performances. By the way, Cy Young, the Mahoning county rail splitter, is the king of them all. He has been pitching steadily since the time whereof the memory of the baseball crank runneth not to the contrary, and he has always been a winner. He is starting the season of 1903 as he has been starting season after season for the past decade, and unless he loses his arm in a railroad wreck he will produce a big winning per cent at the end of the season.

He is a living monument to the habits of cleanliness and correct living and stands today one of the most capable and honorable of his profession. Others with just as much and more natural ability as a ball player, have gone the pace that kills, and are forgotten to baseball fame.

Cincinnati braced up and won a game Tuesday owing to the good pitching and batting of "Long Bob" Ewing. Let the good work go on.

BURROUGHS AROUSED

Famous Naturalist's Criticism of Thompson Seton's Stories.

HIS FOXES CAUGHT IN A FINE TRAP

Accounts of Reynard's Tricks Ridiculed by the Aged Author of Natural History—He Says There Are No Schools For Wild Animals—No Mathematical Crowns.

John Burroughs, our representative prose poet, says the New York American, whose exotic reminiscences are of wild thyme odors, mingled with the brier rose scent of the Hudson valley and the Catskills, has fallen across the path of Ernest Thompson Seton (Seton, Thompson that was), the author, who has blended the love of fiction with the love of nature in his animal novel, "Wild Animals I Have Known."

In the current Atlantic Monthly Mr. Burroughs says that Mr. Seton's book justifies the phrase, "Sham Natural History"—that is, Mr. Burroughs playfully pulls Mr. Seton over very hot coals by saying that the line between fact and fiction is deliberately crossed and that the reader is thrown into such a spell that he does not know he has crossed into the land of make believe.

Mr. Burroughs is a naturalist himself, and a thoroughgoing countryman, a tiller of the soil rather than a slave of the pen, and when he has things to say does so wholly untrammelled and unburied and very interestingly. Probably he would never have written his paper, "Real and Sham Natural History," if Mr. Seton had not with emphatic assertion protested that his stories were true. It is this which has riled Mr. Burroughs, and which, he writes, "makes the judicious griever."

No expert student, writes Mr. Burroughs, has anything to report that comes within gunshot of what appears to have been Mr. Seton's daily experience, and no other person in the world has ever seen such dogs, wolves, foxes, rabbits, mustangs or crows.

Mr. Burroughs writes that Mr. Seton's stories are pleasing, but he insists that it is not the way to write books on natural history. "Why did he not say that their groundwork was fact and their finish fiction?" asks the old farmer and companion of wild life. "Why does he constantly aim to convey the idea that wild creatures drill and instruct their young, even punishing them at times for disobedience of orders? There is not a shadow of truth in it."

About Mr. Seton's well known fox story Mr. Burroughs writes: "Every hunter knows that the fox when pursued by bounds will often resort to devices that look like cunning tricks to confuse and mislead the dog. Thus a fox, hotly pushed, will run through a flock of sheep. Mr. Seton goes several better and makes his fox jump upon the back of a sheep and ride several hundred yards." Of course no fox ever did that.

"Again, the fox will sometimes take to the railroad track and walk upon the rail, doubtless with the vague notion of eluding his pursuers. Mr. Seton makes his fox so very foxy that he deliberately lures the bounds upon the long trestle, where he knows they will be just in time to meet and be killed by a passing train, as they are. The presumption is that the fox had a watch and a time table about his person—but such is the way of romance."

"In all of the animal stories of Mr. Seton that I have read," continues Mr. Burroughs, "the same liberties are taken with facts. In his story of the rabbit Raggying he says: 'Those who do not know the animals may well think I have humanized them, but those who have lived so near them as to know something of their ways and their minds will not think so.' This is the old trick of the romancer—he swears his tale is true because he knows his readers want this assurance; it makes the thing taste better. But those who know the animals are just the ones Mr. Thompson Seton cannot fool."

In regard to Mr. Seton's story of the crow Silver Spot, Mr. Burroughs differs radically from Mr. Seton. "Crows do not dart into a bush when pursued by a kingbird or a purple martin," says the aged observer. "They are not afraid of a hawk; they cannot count six" (Silver Spot could count thirty); "they do not caw when you stand under them in winter to turn their course; they do not drill their young; they do not flock together in June; they cannot worry a fox into giving up half his dinner; they do not, as far as we know, have perpetual sentries; they have no calls that we can be sure answer to our words 'mount,' 'descend,' 'form line,' 'forage,' etc. It is simply Mr. Seton's strokes of fancy. The crows do not train their young. They have no fortress or schools or colleges or examining bird or diplomas or medals of honor or hospitals or churches or telephones or postal deliveries or anything of that sort. Indeed, the poorest backwoods hamlet has more of the appurtenances of civilization than the best of organized crows or other wild animal communities in the land."

"Why should anyone pain oneself with such stuff on an unsatisfying public as veritable 'natural history'?" When a man, writing or speaking of his own experience, says without qualifications that he has seen a thing, we are expected to take him at his word." And then Mr. Burroughs suggests that the "natural history" of Mr. Seton is quite as correct as that of Baron Munchausen.

THE A. A. Griggs COMPANY

AMUSEMENTS.

Arkansas has often been the theme of song and story, and no melody ever written has evolved more genuine pleasure than "The Arkansas Traveler." The same may be said of "Human Hearts," which is a strong story dealing with life in the Arkansas hills, only in addition to laughter, it is mingled with heart interest and tears. This season's company secured by Manager Nankeville will be far superior to any ever engaged to portray this strongest of strong plays. The scenic equipment this season will be entirely new, the past summer having been devoted to securing new models and the building and painting of new scenery. Consequently this year "Human Hearts" will be practically a brand new production. It has been Manager Nankeville's aim to improve the performance each season and to this fact he attributes its great success and lasting popularity. "Human Hearts" will be seen at the Auditorium tonight.

NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

In organizing the "Smart Set" which is to be the attraction at the Auditorium next Saturday night, May 2 the manager has an eye for beauty as expressed by African nature; an ear for music and a keen sense of the popular taste. He made his selections for the cast of this three act comedy, which is up to date in every requisite for a vehicle of African talent, with a view to giving the theatre goer a peep at the methods of "coon" art, and the true value of humor and mirth when intelligently and innocently applied. Consequently the fifty people chosen to exploit the "Smart Set" will be sure to find friends everywhere, because they will do their utmost to please and never to offend the most fastidious.

THE TEMPEST, MAY 12.

"The Tempest" which will be seen at the Auditorium on May 12, with Louis James and Frederick Warde and a company of 47 players including a ballet and chorus is a perfect specimen of the purely romantic drama in which the interest is not historical nor dependent upon a logical connection of events. It is the birth of the imagination and a species of drama which owes no allegiance to time or space. As a spectacle the forthcoming production will excel anything ever seen in this city.

EZRA LYNDE,

Former Licking County Man Died in Coshocton at the Age of Eighty Years.

The Coshocton Standard announces the death of Ezra Lynde, one of the best known citizens of Coshocton. His age was nearly 80 years. He came to Ohio at the age of 15 years, and lived in Licking county awhile; then going to Springfield, Ill., and in 1850 returning to Ohio and settling in Roscoe. There he married Miss Anna M. Ransom, in 1854. He continued in the business of a tinner in that village until twelve years ago, when he moved his family to Coshocton. The wife survives him; also one son, William Lynde, clothing merchant of Coshocton.

BROTHERS

Will be Hanged on the Same Day for the Same Crime—A Triple Execution Planned.

Clarksville, Tenn., April 29—For the first time in the history of the state, three brothers, all negroes, have been sentenced to hang on the same day for the same crime, that of murder. John, Pete and Clay Johnson, were yesterday sentenced by Judge C. W. Tyler, in the Criminal Court, to be "taken from the County Jail on Friday, May 29th, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. and hanged by the neck until they are dead."

Before this sentence was passed each was given a chance to speak, but they refused to say a word. The three heard their sentence pronounced without showing the slightest emotion or interest, and were then taken to jail, closely guarded, to await their doom. The crime for which the three were sentenced to hang was committed in the Needmore vicinity last October and was cold-blooded. A negro festival was in progress. Oscar Redmond, colored, had been engaged to keep the peace. The Johnson brothers attended the festivities and raised "rough house." Redmond attempted to quiet them. The three set upon him, chased him home, into his house and out again, firing as they ran. The fatal shot was fired by John Johnson, it is alleged, as Redmond was leaving his own house after being run out by his pursuers. He fell dead just outside the door.

MILLIONAIRE

To Put on Stripes and Will Have to Work in a Georgia Convict Camp.

Waycross, Ga., April 29—George F. Gilbert, easily worth $1,000,000 and perhaps the most prominent man of this section in a business and social way, has just begun a sentence of four years in the Georgia convict camps for robbing railroad cars.

Gilbert was convicted last year, and since then has vainly striven to escape the penitentiary by appealing to the Governor and to the Pardon Commission. His last proposition to pay $10,000 in lieu of the prison sentence was rejected by Governor Terrell, and he was ordered to the convict camp.

Gilbert broke down when he realized that he would have to go and sobbed like a baby. Some of his friends cried with him. Gilbert's efforts to escape the stripes might have prevailed but for the hard fight of the Plant Railroad system, which alleged that he has been robbing freight cars for years and has thus accumulated the large fortune which he possesses.

THE EFFECT ON THE CROPS

Will Be to Retard Rather Than Destroy—Colder Weather Promised For Newark Tomorrow.

A large area of Nebraska and South Dakota are in the grip of a sleet or snow storm today while a blizzard is raging in Minnesota. A heavy snow storm prevails on Lake Superior. The weather bureau promises that Newark will feel the effects of this cold snap tomorrow. Rain is promised and snow storms on Lake Erie are predicted.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 29—Northwestern and Northern Nebraska and most of South Dakota are in the grip of sleet and snow storms this morning. In South Dakota the snow fall is very heavy and as a result this entire territory is practically cut off from communication by telegraph or telephone. The effect on the crops will be rather to retard than to kill.

DISCOVERS GERM OF SMALLPOX

Boston, April 29—The announcement of the discovery of the cause of smallpox was made known last night by Dr. William T. Councilman, professor of pathology in the Harvard Medical school at a meeting of the Boston Society of Medical Science. The announcement is the outcome of investigations conducted by Dr. Councilman, Dr. George Burgess McGrath and Dr. Walter Remsen Brickerhoff, with the co-operation of the Boston Board of health, during the recent epidemic of the disease in this city.

It has been determined that smallpox is caused by a micro-organism representative of the lowest form of animal life. This fact serves to show a relation between smallpox and such diseases as malaria, and to distinguish it from many other infectious diseases caused by bacteria.

MANY

Are Flocking to St. Louis

And World's Fair City Is Already Packed

PRESIDENT AND PARTY ARRIVE THIS AFTERNOON

DECORATORS WORKING HARD

To Put the City in Fine Trim for the Dedication Ceremonies That Begin Tomorrow.

St. Louis, April 29—The final day before the world's fair dedication ceremonies shows on every street decorators working like mad. The streets are packed with visitors and special trains are drawing thousands more into the union station every hour. The World's Fair site resembles a military camp. Miles upon miles of white tents stretch out over the hills and down dales, glistening in the sunlight. Men in blue, in khaki and in olive green, march here and there about their duties. At 10 a. m. 14,000 soldiers were encamped and 10,000 more will have been added to the tented city before midnight tonight.

President Roosevelt and party will arrive here at 4:10 p. m. today by a special train, and will be driven direct to the good roads convention where the president will make an address. Less than an hour after the arrival of the distinguished party the exercises at St. Louis University will be witnessed by the president. After the exercises at the University President Roosevelt will be driven to the home of President Davis R. Francis, of the World's Fair, and this evening he will address the Franz Sigel monument association.

Tomorrow will be an equally strenuous day for the President. Mayor Wells will extend to him the freedom of the city at the St. Louis club at 10 a. m. and at 10:30 he will head the dedication parade for the fair grounds, where the parade will pass in review before him. President Roosevelt and other distinguished visitors will then eat luncheon and at 2:15 p. m. the President will formally dedicate the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Then will come dinner in the hall of congresses and the fireworks display on the exposition grounds. At 10:30 p. m. the Presidential special will depart for Kansas City.

The President will witness in the liberal arts building, where the dedication ceremonies will be conducted, the largest audience ever assembled under one roof in the history of America. Seventeen thousand chairs have been placed in the parquet section and when the raised sections, or amphitheatre upon which there are several thousand long benches arranged, are filled, the exact seating capacity will be 58,660. Tests made in the building proved the acoustics to be perfect.

SULTAN

Orders Armenian Massacres

To Relieve Pressure In European Turkey

HUNDREDS ALREADY KILLED OR WOUNDED

MANY ARMENIAN FUGITIVES

Pursued by Turkish Cavalry Crossed The Russian Frontier—Situation Believed to be Serious.

Berlin, April 29—Die Information today reports that the Sultan recently summoned the Kurd chiefs in Asia Minor to Constantinople and instructed them to recommence the Armenian massacres which caused such a sensation in the civilized world half a dozen years ago. Abdul's idea, the paper asserts, is that bloodshed on a large scale in Armenia would distract attention from Macedonia and relieve the pressure in European Turkey.

Armenian massacres, Die Information continues, have already occurred in the districts of Van, Vaspouran, Mush and Sassun. In the fight near Van the Armenians fought the Kurds fiercely with the result that 200 were killed and several hundred wounded, many of the casualties being among the Kurds.

Armenian fugitives, according to the paper, crossed the Russian frontier near Sarikamish pursued by Turkish cavalry.

The Turks continued the pursuit into Russian territory. The frontier guard raised the alarm and a regiment of Cossacks appeared and fired on the Turks. A brief encounter followed, say the paper, after which the Turks withdrew.

The Lokal Anzeiger also today reports the encounter between the Turkish forces and Cossacks and states that the Turkish officer and six men were killed.

The situation in the paper's opinion may produce catastrophic effects.

CZAR

Wants Not Only Manchuria

But Whole of Northern China

RUSSIA HAS BEEN PREPARING FOR THIS MOVE

DIPLOMATS WERE OUTWITTED

Beginning of the End of China Seems To be at Hand—The Eastern Situation.

Washington, April 29—In response to inquiries made three days ago by Secretary Hay, the state department today received a dispatch from Ambassador McCormick to the effect that the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs has assured him that the published reports of the proposed convention between Russia and China relating to Manchuria are absolutely incorrect and that there is no foundation for the report that Russia demands China shall refuse requests of other powers for treaty ports and consulates in Manchuria.

Berlin, April 29—Word has just been received here that Prince Kour-Patkin's departure for China is only part of a deep-laid Russian scheme to annex not only Manchuria, but the whole northern part of the Chinese empire. For the last six months Russia has been quietly shipping enormous quantities of military supplies to Cossack camps along the northern boundary line of China, and is now in position to defy any attempt to thwart her plans in that region.

Under the guise of convicts, thousands of men have been rushed over the Siberian railway and it is said that the czar now has two full army corps occupying every point of vantage, to invade China.

At the same time secret agents of Russia have, it is said been stirring up trouble in the Chinese empire, and another uprising of the Boxers may be expected at any time.

This news, which has reached here by letter, because of the impossibility of telegraphing it past the Russian censorship, has not come unexpectedly. In fact, the German foreign and war departments have been informed of Russia's every move in the East, but there is no intention on the part of the imperial government to interfere, as the breaking up of China is a question of time only, and it is thought the czar will be perfectly willing to come to an understanding with the Kaiser, whereby Germany would acquire valuable territory in the south and east of China.

It is known that the Kaiser, during his short visit to Copenhagen, expressed his desire to visit Fredensborg castle, the summer residence of King Christian, some time during the latter part of the summer, when the czar will be there, and he then expects to come to some friendly arrangement with Russia.

France, it is believed here, as a matter of course, as the acknowledged ally of Russia, has been kept thoroughly advised with all developments in the East, and will act in unison with Russia, regarding Chinese territory.

Some time ago, the Russian bear, getting tired of the British lion, and Japan, more than willing to try her strength with the Russian bear, but without the support from England, she will be powerless against the strong Russian forces, which are already in the field ready for both offense and defense.

Should England try to oppose the plans of Russia, she will, it is said shortly find herself checkmated and threatened in India, as the czar has an enormous force ready to invade English territory from the north.

"As so often before, Russian diplomacy has scored a victory of world-wide importance without the loss of a drop of blood," remarked a well-known diplomat.

The occupation of Manchuria and annexation of as much of the Chinese empire as Russia sees fit to take, is a "fait accompli" and Europe can do nothing wiser than consent with as good grace as possible.

The whole plan is generally credited to Prince Kourapatin, who besides being an excellent diplomat, is an experienced soldier and thoroughly familiar with every part of Asia. Since the days of Skobelev, Russia has not had a general as talented as Kourapatin, who is just as daring and brave as the latter, but is cool where Skobelev was high strung and nervous.

Rome, April 29—King Edward, accompanied by King Victor Emmanuel, today reviewed 25,000 troops in Place D'Arms. The review began at 3 o'clock in ideal weather with a clear sky and a cool breeze blowing from the sea. An immense crowd tendered a rousing ovation.

TRUNKS

Of the Earl of Yarmouth Being Sought By a Lawyer Who Has Claims Against Him.

New York, April 29—A writ of attachment against George Alexander Seymour Earl of Yarmouth, who has just taken Miss Alice Thaw, a Pittsburgh heiress, as his bride, was obtained yesterday by Attorney John S. Harrington, and was placed in the hands of Marshal Godward, who started out to look for the 14 trunks containing the Earl's wardrobe and part of his bride's trousseau.

The writ was obtained for an alleged debt which is said to aggregate $5000.

Lawyer Harrington, at whose instance the writ was obtained, when seen said, there were four claims against the Earl, one that of a hotel keeper who holds a note against the Earl for $115, another from carpenters for $90 for fitting up a Turkish room, a third for $150 for rent and the fourth for $100 for electrical fixtures. A second writ was obtained this afternoon by Lawyer Harrington for Henry Winans & Co., who allege that the Earl owes them $700, the amount of a year's lease of apartments at the Albany apartment house.

The Earl and the Countess have booked passage on the St. Paul, sailing for England today as Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander.

Polo is probably the oldest of athletic sports. It has been traced to 600 B. C.

RED

Light Flashed In Time

To Save Lives of Many People

OPERATOR FOUND TO BE RAVING MANIAC.

ENGINEER OF FLYER STOPPED

Investigate the Danger Signal and He Prevented Catastrophe—Insane Man Save the Train.

St. Louis, Mo., April 29—A telegraph operator's last act in Peog Station, Ill., before becoming a raving maniac was to turn on the red danger light, thus saving the Chicago express on the Wabash from possible destruction.

Whirling through space on a down grade at the rate of 60 miles an hour, Engineer Dongan of the express train, gave a cry of astonishment as the great throbbing engine swept around a curve into view of the station of Peog. The red eye of a semaphore flashing its message of danger to all eastbound trains, caused him to reach for the reverse lever with one hand while with the other he sought the small handle that controls the air brakes.

No. 15, the fast Chicago express, is a privileged train, and all others seek side tracks when it encroaches upon their right of way.

Believing that the rumble of the train would notify the operator at Peog that the Chicago express was coming Dongan refrained for 30 seconds from checking the speed of the flyer. But when the sharp blast from his whistle brought no response and still the red beacon did not change to white Dongan acted.

With a shriek the powerful locomotive yielded to the unrelenting clutch of its superior air brakes and drew up panting before the little station.

The conductor and brakeman hurried to the engine in alarm. Dongan swung himself down from his cab and the three men hurried into the telegraph station amazed and nonpulsed to understand why they were compelled to stop.

As they opened the door and caught sight of the figure sitting at the telegraph key they sprang back with exclamations of horror. Glimmering to himself, unmindful of the tattooing of the sounders and relays calling frantically "G.," "G.," "G.," the signal of the Peog office, D. S. Ranshaw, of Litchfield, the operator upon whom depend-

The engine and all of the cars left the track and were thrown upon their sides. As to how the derailing switch came to be open is a mystery. A northbound train passed the crossing an hour before the accident.

TOWNS NEAR NEWARK.

GRANVILLE

COLLEGE SENIORS HAD A GOOD TIME TUESDAY NIGHT.

Disastrous Runaway—Decoration Day Arrangements—Baseball Games Saturday—Personals.

Granville, Ohio, April 29—About 6 o'clock Tuesday evening the residents of the village were suddenly made aware that "something" was doing in town by the college yell and the tramp of many feet, as a host of students marched through the streets to make more widely known the last Senior "circus." Gaily painted banners and signs were waved aloft, and the parade of the usually dignified Seniors was headed by a band—a real band composed of trumpets and horns and thundering voices. In the wake of the Seniors followed a large number of students who lustily cheered them on. An amusing feature of the parade was the "talk off" on Professor Williams by J. H. West who appeared in ludicrous costume, along with the students. The marchers made an extensive tour of the town, making its way up the stony paths of "Sugar Loaf" and down the broad streets. The last Senior exhibition was held in Recital hall at 8 o'clock, when the following program was carried out:

- Essay, "Men Rich but Self Made," Miss Dora Moore.
- Essay, "The Use and Abuse of Slang," Miss Corinne Anne Metz.
- Oration, "Parasitism," Frank Bedford Amos.
- Essay, "The Dog in Literature," Miss Jessie Amanda King.
- Music, Madrigal, Simonette; Mazurka, Statkowski, Mr. F. B. Amos.
- Oration, "The Relics of Barbarism," Mr. Donald Husted Powers.
- Oration, "The Essence of Heroism," Mr. Hugh Robert Hoch.
- Essay, "The Greater Lights in Literature," Miss Mary Celia Fulton.
- Music, Serenade, Pierre, Mr. Judson.

One of the most disastrous runaways that has been seen in Granville for some time occurred on Monday morning. Mr. Wm. Philbrick the dairyman, who resides on Burg street, had come to town with his daily supply of milk, and having some business to transact left his horse standing in front of the Candy Kitchen. The animal frightened at something and ran away. He ran across the street and collided with the watering trough in front of the postoffice and continuing on his way crashed into the railing in front of the Baptist church, badly wrecking the wagon, and scattering the milk cans and bottles in the street.

At a meeting of the old soldiers of the village held for the purpose of making arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration day, the matter of securing a speaker for the occasion was left to a committee consisting of Messrs. J. C. Malone and C. B. Evans, and to make such other arrangements as they may deem necessary. The committee will report at another meeting to be held one week from next Saturday night.

A fine game of ball is scheduled to take place on Beaver field Saturday afternoon between the Mites of Columbus and Denison's second team. The teams are pretty evenly matched and as this is the only game that will be played on Beaver field until May 12 everybody should turn out and see what the second team can do in the way of playing ball.

Miss Edna Thornton was the guest of Miss Edna Stranathan of Sheparson college at tea on Tuesday evening. Thomas Hartuppe of Corning, was in the village a short time Tuesday on business.

Miss Fannie Henry of Middletown, is visiting friends here for a few days. Denison will play Muskingum at New Concord Saturday.

Mrs. Guy Johnson and sons, who have been visiting relatives in Fredericktown for some days, have returned home.

Hoy Johnson has been visiting for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson at their home in Fredericktown.

The little five year old son of Mr. Charles Hobart, who lives two miles north of this place, met with a very serious accident on Tuesday. Mr.

Hobart had been away from home and on his return his little son met him some distance from the house, and in attempting to get into the surrey he fell under the wheels which passed over his head. He was picked up and taken into the house when a physician was called, who attended to his injuries.

ed the safety of all the trains on that division, at at his instrument a raving maniac.

The trainmen realized for the first time the gravity of the situation. Neither of them was an operator, and the uninterrupted clicking of the instrument was a maddening to them. They were powerless to go forward or backward. They did not know what danger confronted them.

Not for half an hour were the train officials able to find the day operator and get their clearance orders. Fortunately they discovered that Ranshaw had not committed any serious blunders.

When Ranshaw reported for duty the night before he was in his usual health. He had been partially paralyzed some time before, and had been removed from a more important station to Poag, where the work is lighter and where he might have a chance to recuperate.

It is believed from subsequent developments that Ranshaw began to lose his mind early in his night's work. Growing more and more oblivious to his work, yet receiving and relaying train orders mechanically, he finally, with his last conscious act, probably realizing the danger that confronted him, turned on the red light to warn the onrushing flyer.

It was his long training as a railroad man which probably caused him to take the only course to save the great express. Had the flyer gone on through, a smash-up somewhere on the line must certainly have occurred, because Ranshaw was in no condition to keep the trains moving systematically and safely.

The men put the madman on the train that carried him in the afternoon to his home at Litchfield. He will be removed to an asylum.

Preferred Hogs to Land.

They tell a good one on a prominent real estate man of Waurika. Some time ago he carried a prospector over on Beaver creek to show him a certain claim. He told the man that it was an exceptionally fine claim, that the land did not overflow and that he would sell it to him for $4,000. The man looked around and discovered some red mud way up in a tree and asked the real estate man what caused that mud in the tree tops if the land did not overflow. The agent promptly replied that there was a kind of hog raised over in the Chickasaw country which used to range on the creek and that they rubbed the mud on the trees. The prospector took a look over the land, glanced up in the tree again and told the Waurika man that he wouldn't take the claim, but he would give him $4,000 for a couple of those hogs.—Kansas City Journal.

The Cranberry.

The value of the cranberry as a medicinal agent was early recognized by the American aborigines, who prepared poultices from them to extract the venom from poisoned arrows. On the same principle they are used now as a remedy for erysipelas, taken internally or applied as a poultice. In malarial and typhoid conditions the acid of the fruit is especially commended, while dyspeptics who lack gastric juice are also offered cranberries. Baten raw they are said to be an excellent remedy for biliousness. As a health food cranberries should not be strained, as too much of their substance is lost.

Sugar Making in 1700.

The historian Leffell, the period of whose observation dated back to 1700-05, describes how in March the Indians made from verse incisions with their hatchets, from which trickles an abundance of water, which they afterward boiled over a fire. He says the sugar thus made has nearly always a burned taste, but that the French make it better than the Indian women, from whom they learned how to make it. Bossu, writing in 1756, is equally explicit as to the source of sugar making.

"WHICH WON?"

(Original.)

Several young men were sitting around a table in the cafe of a club in New York. Some one introduced the subject of matrimony in order to start Cutler Hartsough gabbling, for being a woman hater, he invariably waxed entertaining on marriage. He was especially caustic on this occasion and kept the party in a roar of laughter.

The next topic was as to the time required to make a journey around the globe. This occasioned an animated discussion which led to a bet between Hartsough and Foster Conant of a box at the opera for the coming season that Hartsough would make the trip in sixty-eight days.

Hartsough left the next day at noon and, meeting with no delays, arrived at San Francisco with time to spare to reach New York before the close of the sixty-eighth day, which ended at 12 o'clock noon. So he concluded to have a good night's sleep at a hotel. After dinner he was sitting in the reading room smoking a cigar, when a man approached him and asked if he was Mr. Hartsough. He replied that he was, whereupon he was informed that his exploit was the talk of the clubs of New York, and a New York paper had directed the man to interview him. Hartsough, much pleased, gave the desired interview, with information as to when he would reach different points on his journey eastward. Then the man departed, and Hartsough went to bed.

When the traveler reached Chicago, he had two days in which to make the distance to New York. He left Chicago on a Thursday morning and was not due at his club till Saturday noon. The time between Chicago and New York is twenty hours. In the parlor car sat a young lady dressed in a fashionable traveling costume. She sent the porter to him to ask if he was Mr. Hartsough of New York. Upon his reply that he was she sent him her card.

"Miss Ethelwyn Wheatwill."

Hartsough joined her, raised his hat deferentially and waited for an explanation. The girl's face broke into a delicious flush as she said:

"My aunt, Mrs. Clinton, telegraphed me that you would be on this train. Knowing that I dread traveling alone, she suggested that you might consent to take me under your charge."

"Mrs. Alexander Clinton of — Madison avenue?"

"Yes."

"I know her very well. She has placed me under an obligation in giving me so charming a traveling companion. But how did she know I was to be on this train?"

"Why, your trip is the talk of all our set. Besides, I was told there was something about it in the newspapers."

Then Hartsough remembered the man who had interviewed him.

Miss Wheatwill knew of his bet, and Hartsough gallantly told her that in case he won it he would beg the honor of her acceptance of the box for the season. This offer occasioned a sudden cessation of that liveliness with which she was attracting him. However, this passed off, and the twenty hours of the journey seemed to Hartsough but so many minutes. Mrs. Alexander Clinton met them at the Grand Central station with her carriage and insisted on Hartsough driving home with them to dinner, an invitation he was only too glad to accept. After dinner he was left with Miss Wheatwill, and at 11 o'clock he requested the butler to call a carriage. Mrs. Clinton insisted on his remaining in the house for the night. This he declined at first, but as the lady seemed to have set her heart upon it he finally consented, pleased to remember that he would meet Miss Wheatwill at breakfast.

He had no sooner entered his room than he heard the sound of a key turned from the outside. Trying the door, he found it locked.

"Trick!" he cried, starting.

Meanwhile a party of men at the club, who had had an intimation from one of their number that something was in the wind, had met eager for news. As the clock struck 12 Tom Bond entered and reported that Hartsough was under lock and key. A couple of baskets of champagne celebrated the event.

It was 10 o'clock the next morning when Hartsough heard a tap at his prison door.

"It's I, Mr. Hartsough."

"Miss Wheatwill?"

"Yes, I am very much ashamed of the part I have taken, though it was all your fault. My cousin, Tom Bond, heard your strictures on woman and your bet. I bet him the price of a theater party that I would delay you."

"H'm! There's time for repentance. It's only 10 o'clock. I'm due at the club at 12."

"I'd lose my bet."

"I'll take care of that and keep my promise about the opera box."

"Tom will never forgive me."

"I will."

"That's very nice of you."

The door was unlocked and the prisoner spent an hour in the drawing room with his jailer.

At 11:55, as the gentlemen at the club were waiting for the stroke of 12 to further celebrate, in walked Hartsough. There was blank astonishment on every face.

"How did you get out?" asked Bond.

"By bribery. The lady who trapped me will have the use of the box I have won."

Chronic Sores Eating Ulcers, A Constant Drain Upon the System.

Nothing is a source of so much trouble as an old sore or ulcer, particularly when located upon the lower extremities where the circulation is weak and sluggish. A gangrenous eating ulcer upon the leg is a frightful sight, and as the poison burrows deeper and deeper into the tissue beneath and the sore continues to spread, one can almost see the flesh melting away and feel the strength going out with the sickening discharges. Great running sores and deep offensive ulcers often develop from a simple boil, swollen glands, bruise or pimple, and are a threatening danger always, because, while all such sores are not cancerous, a great many are, and this should make you suspicious of all chronic, slow-healing ulcers and sores, particularly if cancer runs in your family. Face sores are common and cause the greatest annoyance because they are so persistent and unsightly and detract so much from one's personal appearance.

Middle aged and old people and those whose blood is contaminated and tainted with the germs and poison of malaria or some previous sickness, are the chief sufferers from chronic sores and ulcers. While the blood remains in an unhealthy, polluted condition healing is impossible, and the sore will continue to grow and spread in spite of washes and salves or any superficial or surface treatment, for the sore is but the outward sign of some constitutional disorder, a bad condition of the blood and system which local remedies cannot cure. A blood purifier and tonic is what you need. Something to cleanse the blood, restore its lost properties, quicken the circulation and invigorate the constitution, and S. S. S. is just such a remedy.

S. S. S. reaches these old chronic sores through the blood. It goes to the very root of the trouble and counteracts and removes from the blood all the impurities and poisons, and gradually builds up the entire system and strengthens the sluggish circulation, and when the blood has been purified and the system purged of all morbid, unhealthy matter the healing process begins, and the ulcer or sore is soon entirely gone.

S. S. S. contains no mineral or poisonous drugs of any description, but is guaranteed a purely vegetable remedy, a blood purifier and tonic combined and a safe and permanent cure for chronic sores and ulcers. If you have a slow-healing sore of any kind, external or internal, write us about it, and our physicians will advise you without charge. Book on "The Blood and Its Diseases" free.

Mrs. Tupman, a prominent lady of Richmond, Va., a great sufferer with woman's troubles, tells how she was cured.

"For some years I suffered with backache, severe bearing-down pains, leucorrhoea, and falling of the womb. I tried many remedies, but nothing gave any positive relief. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in June, 1901. When I had taken the first half bottle, I felt a vast improvement, and have now taken ten bottles with the result that I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking the Vegetable Compound I felt all worn out and was fast approaching complete nervous collapse. I weighed only 98 pounds. Now I weigh 100½ pounds and am improving every day. I gladly testify to the benefits received."—Mrs. R. C. TUPMAN, 423 West 30th St., Richmond, Va.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me?" Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick. Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women. Perhaps she has just the knowledge that will help your case—try her to-day—it costs nothing.

THE SICK.
Should use Great Seal Prune Laxative.

William M. Abbott, an employee of the Everett glass works, is quite sick at his home on Sycamore street.

Henry Denman, who has been confined to his home in the North End for the past two weeks with an attack of typhoid fever, is rapidly recovering and was able to come down street today.

The St. Petersburg Messenger of Trade and Industry boasts that the characteristic feature of last year was the almost total suspension of the import of chemical products and the very perceptible increase in their price, due to the growth of competition and improvements in Russian manufacture.

The great American trouble is indigestion, largely the result of the great American habit hurry.

Hastily swallowed meals are probably the greatest cause of indigestion.

The stomach is given more than its share of work, and is weakened. The first thing to do in correcting the trouble is to stop fast eating. The next thing is to take a good digestive tonic to strengthen the digestion and enrich the impoverished blood.

Such a tonic is Walth's Peptonized Food, a simple combination of pure protein and good pure wine, to be had at Frank H. Hall's drug store.

JUDGE SEWARD'S SON

Thrown From Pony, Receiving Fractured Skull— Accident on North Fourth Street—Boy's Condition is Critical.

Clarence Seward, the 13 year old son of Judge and Mrs. Charles W. Seward, was badly injured Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock on North Fourth street in front of Kates & Wright's upholstery shop.

The little fellow was riding a pony from school to his home north of Newark, and the animal shied at some tiles piled along the sidewalk and backed directly in front of the street car, which was coming down Fourth street. The lad was thrown to the pavement and sustained serious injuries. He was taken in an unconscious condition to the office of Dr. J. A. Mitchell, who is an uncle of the boy, and Drs. D. M. Smith, J. G. Bower, W. H. Knauss and J. A. Mitchell examined him and found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull.

He remained in a semi-unconscious condition all night, and Wednesday morning, although his symptoms were more favorable, it is doubtful if he will recover.

BY A FALL

Frank M. Smith's Son Was Rendered Unconscious Tuesday Evening. Not Seriously Hurt.

William, the little twelve year old son of Mr. Frank M. Smith, while riding his bicycle on Hudson avenue Tuesday evening, struck a stone and was thrown to the pavement, temporarily rendering him unconscious. He was found to be seriously injured about the head, while his hip, back, and hands were badly bruised. The accident created considerable excitement on account of several horses taking fright at an automobile that was passing, and for a short time there was a general mixup of things on the street. Dr. D. M. Smith came along in his auto and stopped and examined the boy. He then loaded the boy and wheel on his auto and took him to his home on Hudson avenue, where a more careful examination was made and William's injuries, though painful, were pronounced not serious.

SPECIAL MEETING

Of the City Council This Evening to Consider Electric Light Situation—Superintendent Refused to Permit Council to Make Tests.

Thirteen members of the City Council, and Edward De Crow, formerly of Newark, now an electrical expert with the Western Electric company of Chicago, met with an unexpected reception Tuesday night when they went to the municipal electric light plant to test the dynamo that was placed there nearly two years ago by the Western Electric company.

Superintendent R. Brown refused absolutely to allow Mr. De Crow or any member of the council to touch the machine, or make any test whatever, and thereby hangs a tale.

The present city council has arranged to purchase a new 125 light dynamo, and the machine has been ordered, one of the old 50 light machines to be taken in part payment by the Western Electric Company.

The General Electric company also had a bid in to furnish the new machine, and Superintendent Brown was in favor of this purchase, but the council thought otherwise, and the Western's bid was accepted as the lowest and best.

The proposed new machine is an exact duplicate of the one now in use, about which the superintendent complains. He has said the machine, instead of carrying 125 lights, can carry no more than 80, and that the proposed new one is exactly the same in point of construction and capacity, and is not up to date.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

Expert De Crow was sent to Newark by this company to make a test of the dynamo at the plant, before the councilmen, and he went there Tuesday night for that purpose.

Superintendent Brown refused to allow him to make any tests, although he offered to give a $15,000 guarantee that if he broke or burned anything, he would pay for the same.

He offered to show by tests that with proper handling the dynamo would do all that was claimed for it and more. He offered to put on 150 lights, 25 more than it was warranted to carry, but to all his propositions the superintendent was deaf, and the councilmen went away disappointed, and Mr. De Crow thoroughly disgusted.

The actions of Superintendent Brown are inexplicable, and a special meeting of the council has been called for Wednesday night to take further action on the matter.

One member said this morning that if the present council was not so near the end of its existence, Brown would be discharged immediately from his position, but under the circumstances he did not know what action would be taken.

Mr. Brown has asked Solicitor Smythe to sue an injunction against the council to restrain them from purchasing the proposed machine.

Who Was Errand Boy Sixteen Years Ago Now Head of One of Newark's Big Stores.

A Columbus paper prints a likeness of Mr. W. H. Mazey and the following sketch:

"W. H. Birthday Observed.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the past week was the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mr. John Taylor at his home on Western avenue on Sunday. Mr. Taylor was 78 years old and the children of his deceased brother, Mr. Jas. Taylor, planned to assist the old gentleman in properly celebrating the event. Besides the immediate family of Mr. Taylor there were present: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clinis of Hebron, Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence of Kirkersville, Samuel Taylor, son and daughter of Hebron, George Taylor, wife and two daughters of Millersport, Thomas Rugg, wife and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lawyer, Mr. and Mrs. James Clinis and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Leist of Newark. The principal feature of the occasion was the sumptuous dinner that was served.

A short time ago a Sicilian advocate was found guilty of 63 different acts of fraud. For his industry and enthusiasm in the cause of dishonesty he was sentenced to 189 years of imprisonment.

The first Union flag was unfurled on January 1, 1776, over the camp at Cambridge.

JUST one taste of Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil (Graham's) will dispel any idea that it is repulsive, nauseating like ordinary cod liver oil.

Those who have been deprived of testing its remarkable reconstructive qualities because they imagined it the greasy, fishy kind, could never be more mistaken.

Hagee's Cordial is a thin palatable fluid, with a pleasant odor and agreeable taste. Children take it readily and it agrees with the most delicate stomach. For thin, emaciated, weak conditions of adults, children or infants, its bracing, tonic effect is marvelous.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Newark vs. Zanesville.
From the way the Newark and Zanesville newspapers are anticipating results and from their saucy talk back and forth it may be expected that when the Newark team engages Drumm's Pets there will be a rattling game, that is, provided always the Newark team can play ball. The game will be played in Zanesville on Decoration Day.—Zanesville Times-Recorder.

The Newark team will demonstrate to the satisfaction of everyone except the supporters of the Zanesville team, that it can play the game.

Cy Young a Model Ball Player.

There is a good deal of "tommy rot" about this player or that one being a "warm weather pitcher," a "July performer," and other equally preposterous claims as a result of poor work on the part of certain slab artists. A game in April counts just as much as a game in July, in the championship table, and there is no reason why the weather should have a different effect on different pitchers' arms. You never hear such peurile excuses made for the really great pitchers of the profession, but usually about some erratic performer, who has been "four flushing" on the strength of some few particularly lucky or effective games. Look at Cy Young, Rube Waddell, Joe McGinnity, Christy Mathewson, Jack Chesbro, Frank Hahn and several others. The go out at flag fall and pitch their best and are consistent in their winning performances. By the way, Cy Young, the Mahoning country rail splitter, is the king of them all. He has been pitching steadily since the time whereof the memory of the baseball crank runneth not to the contrary, and he has always been a winner. He is starting the season of 1903 as he has been starting season after season for the past decade, and unless he loses his arm in a railroad wreck he will produce a big winning per cent at the end of the season.

He is a living monument to the habits of abstemiousness and correct living and stands today one of the most capable and honorable of his profession. Others with just as much and more natural ability as a ball player,

BURROUGHS AROUSED

Famous Naturalist's Criticism of Thompson Seton's Stories.

HIS FOXES CAUGHT IN A FINE TRAP

Accounts of Reynard's Tricks Ridiculed by the Aged Author of Natural History—He Says There Are No Schools For Wild Animals—No Mathematical Crows.

John Burroughs, our representative prose poet, says the New York American, whose exotic reminiscences are of wild thyme odors, mingled with the brier rose scent of the Hudson valley and the Catskills, has fallen across the path of Ernest Thompson Seton (Seton-Thompson that was), the author, who has blended the love of fiction with the love of nature in his animal novel, "Wild Animals I Have Known."

In the current Atlantic Monthly Mr. Burroughs says that Mr. Seton's book justifies the phrase, "Sham Natural History"—that is, Mr. Burroughs playfully pulls Mr. Seton over very hot coals by saying that the line between fact and fiction is deliberately crossed and that the reader is thrown into such a spell that he does not know he has crossed into the land of make believe.

Mr. Burroughs is a naturalist himself, and a thoroughgoing countryman, a tiller of the soil rather than a slave of the pen, and when he has things to say does so wholly untrammelled and unharmed by very interesting. Probably he would never have written his paper, "Real and Sham Natural History," if Mr. Seton had not with emphatic assertion protested that his stories were true. It is this which has riled Mr. Burroughs, and which, he writes, "makes the judicious grieve." No expert student, writes Mr. Burroughs, has anything to report that comes within gunshot of what appears to have been Mr. Seton's daily experience, and no other person in the world has ever seen such dogs, wolves, foxes, rabbits, mustangs or crows.

Mr. Burroughs writes that Mr. Seton's stories are pleasing, but he insists that it is not the way to write books on natural history. "Why did he not say that their groundwork was fact and their finish fiction?" asks the old farmer and companion of wild life. "Why does he constantly aim to convey the idea that wild creatures drill and instruct their young, even punishing them at times for disobedience of orders? There is not a shadow of truth in it."

About Mr. Seton's well known fox story Mr. Burroughs writes: "Every hunter knows that the fox when pursued by hounds will often resort to devices that look like cunning tricks to confuse and mislead the dog. Thus a fox, hotly pushed, will run through a flock of sheep. Mr. Seton goes several better and makes his fox jump upon the back of a sheep and ride several hundred yards. Of course no fox ever did that."

"Again, the fox will sometimes take to the railroad track and walk upon the rail, doubtless with the vague notion of eluding his pursuers. Mr. Seton makes his fox so very foxy that he deliberately lures the hounds upon the long trestle, where he knows they will be just in time to meet and be killed by a passing train, as they are. The presumption is that the fox had a watch and a time table about his person—but such is the way of romance."

"In all of the animal stories of Mr. Seton that I have read," continues Mr. Burroughs, "the same liberties are taken with facts. In his story of the rabbit Raggytag he says: 'Those who do not know the animals may well think I have humanized them, but those who have lived so near them as to know something of their ways and their minds will not think so.' This is the old trick of the romancer—he swears his tale is true because he knows his readers want this assurance; it makes the thing taste better. But those who know the animals are just the ones Mr. Thompson Seton cannot fool."

In regard to Mr. Seton's story of the crow Silver Spot, Mr. Burroughs differs radically from Mr. Seton. "Crows do not dart into a bush when pursued by a kingbird or a purple martin," says the aged observer. "They are not afraid of a hawk; they cannot count six" (Silver Spot could count thirty); "they do not caw when you stand under them in winter to turn their course; they do not drill their young; they do not flock together in June; they cannot worry a fox into giving up half his dinner; they do not, as far as we know, have perpetual sentries; they have no calls that we can be sure answer to our words 'mount,' 'descend,' 'form line,' 'forage,' etc. It is simply Mr. Seton's strokes of fancy. The crows do not train their young. They have no fortress or schools or colleges or examining bird or diplomas or medals of honor or hospitals or churches or telephones or postal deliveries or anything of that sort. Indeed, the poorest backwoods hamlet has more of the apparatus of civilization than the best of organized crows or other wild animal communities in the land."

"Why should any one palm off such stuff on an unsuspecting public as veritable natural history? When a man, writing or speaking of his own experience, says without qualifications that he has seen a thing, we are expected to take him at his word." And then Mr. Burroughs suggests that the "natural history" of Mr. Seton is quite as correct as that of Barnum Munchausen.

THE A. A. Griggs COMPANY

AMUSEMENTS.

Arkansas has often been the theme of song and story, and no melody ever written has evolved more genuine pleasure than "The Arkansas Traveler." The same may be said of "Human Hearts," which is a strong story dealing with life in the Arkansas hills, only in addition to laughter, it is mingled with heartinterest and tears. This season's company secured by Manager Nankeville will be far superior to any ever engaged to portray this strongest of strong plays. The scenic equipment this season will be entirely new, the past summer having been devoted to securing new models and the building and painting of new scenery. Consequently this year "Human Hearts" will be practically a brand new production. It has been Manager Nankeville's aim to improve the performance each season and to this fact he attributes its great success and lasting popularity. "Human Hearts" will be seen at the Auditorium tonight.

NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

In organizing the "Smart Set" which is to be the attraction at the Auditorium next Saturday night, May 2 the manager has an eye for beauty as expressed by African nature; an ear for music and a keen sense of the popular taste. He made his selections for the cast of this three act comedy, which is up to date in every requisite for a vehicle of African talent, with a view to giving the theatre goer a peep at the methods of "coon" art, and the true value of humor and mirth when intelligently and innocently applied. Consequently the fifty people chosen to exploit the "Smart Set" will be sure to find friends everywhere, because they will do their utmost to please and never to offend the most fastidious.

THE TEMPEST, MAY 12.

"The Tempest" which will be seen at the Auditorium on May 12, with Louis James and Frederick Warde and a company of 47 players including a ballet and chorus is a perfect specimen of the purely romantic drama in which the interest is not historical nor dependent upon a logical connection of events. It is the birth of the imagination and a species of drama which owes no allegiance to time or space. As a spectacle the forthcoming production will excel anything ever seen in this city.

EZRA LYNDE

Former Licking County Man Died in Coshocton at the Age of Eighty Years.

The Coshocton Standard announces the death of Ezra Lynde, one of the best known citizens of Coshocton. His age was nearly 80 years. He came to Ohio at the age of 15 years, and lived in Licking county awhile; then going to Springfield, Ill., and in 1850 returning to Ohio and settling in Roscoe. There he married Miss Anna M. Ransom, in 1854. He continued in the business of a tinner in that village until twelve years ago, when he moved his family to Coshocton. The wife survives him; also one son, William Lynde, clothing merchant of Coshocton.

BROTHERS

Will be Hanged on the Same Day for the Same Crime—A Triple Execution Planned.

Clarksville, Tenn., April 29—For the first time in the history of the state, three brothers, all negroes, have been sentenced to hang on the same day for the same crime, that of murder. John, Pete and Clay Johnson, were yesterday sentenced by Judge C. W. Tyler, in the Criminal Court, to be "taken from the County Jail on Friday, May 29th, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. and hanged by the neck until they are dead."

Before this sentence was passed each was given a chance to speak, but they refused to say a word. The three heard their sentence pronounced without showing the slightest emotion or interest and were then taken to jail, closely guarded, to await their doom.

The crime for which the three were sentenced to hang was committed in the Needmore vicinity last October and was cold-blooded. A negro festival was in progress. Oscar Redmond, colored, had been engaged to keep the peace. The Johnson brothers attended the festivities and raised "rough house." Redmond attempted to quiet them. The three set upon him, chased him home, into his house and out again, firing as they ran. The fatal shot was fired by John Johnson, it is alleged, as Redmond was leaving his own house after being run out by his pursuers. He fell dead just outside the door.

MILLIONAIRE

To Put on Stripes and Will Have to Work in a Georgia Convict Camp.

Waycross, Ga., April 29—George F. Gilbert, easily worth $1,000,000 and perhaps the most prominent man of this section in a business and social way, has just begun a sentence of four years in the Georgia convict camps for robbing railroad cars.

Gilbert was convicted last year, and since then has vainly striven to escape the penitentiary by appealing to the Governor and to the Pardon Commission. His last proposition to pay $10,000 in lieu of the prison sentence was rejected by Governor Terrell, and he was ordered to the convict camp.

Gilbert broke down when he realized that he would have to go and sobbed like a baby. Some of his friends cried with him. Gilbert's efforts to escape the stripes might have prevailed but for the hard fight of the Plant Railroad system, which alleged that he has been robbing freight cars for years and has thus accumulated the large fortune which he possesses.
